

The 1956 REGINA MARIS

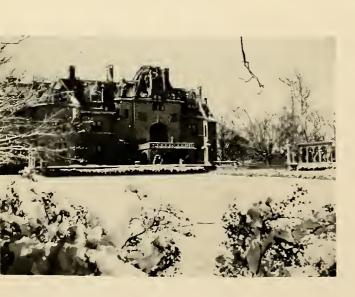

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2012 with funding from LYRASIS Members and Sloan Foundation

Foreword

BLUE ON WHITE, these are the colors for stars, lamp, and book, for Our Lady and her Divine Son. The lamp of wisdom burns at the feet of the Seat of Wisdom, who holds her Son out to us as the Source of all learning. The book lies open, symbol of knowledge which is here for each student. Three stars beckon us onward and upward through Mary, our hope. For us the way is sure, the destiny eternal.

We Reflect On Eternity

On February 21, 1956, in the Providence and wisdom of God, Sister Mary Emeria, R.S.M., left the affairs and responsibilities of time for the unending joys of eternity. This date marked the end of many years dedicated to the cause of God's church and to the promulgation of His truth among elementary, high school, and college students. The sphere of her influence lay chiefly in an administrative capacity for which her experience in the classroom was an invaluable preparation.

Her endeavors in the field of education here at the College were diversified and intensive. First as an instructor in the education department and then as dean, Sister aimed to solidify and augment the curriculum for the student teachers. Her contact with state and city efficials in this respect resulted in the further development of an excellent program for observation and teacher training.

As the last among the many young people who came within the scope of her assiduous and self-sacrificing attention, we found in her death much that inspired us in our outlook on life and much that gave us pause in the way of appreciation of her untiring efforts in our behalf.

Thus in the Regina Maris of 1956 we pay sincere tribute to her memory knowing full well that in the great Light of the City of God Salve Regina is graciously and lovingly remembered.

Dedication • • • • •

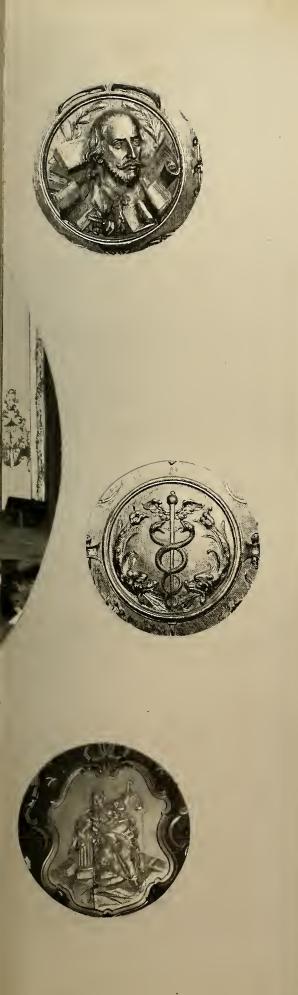

On September 21, 1947, Salve Regina College opened its doors to its first freshman class of fifty-nine students. During the ensuing months the faculty, realizing that an auxiliary organization would be a definite asset to the College, began plans for the formation of such a group. By April, 1948 all plans and preliminaries were completed, and the Salve Regina College Guild was a beautiful reality, with Reverend Gerald Dillon as its Moderator and Mrs. Frank D. Fogarty as its first President. From the initial seventy-five members, the Guild increased year by year until it reached a total of two thousand fifty-one. The Guild "mothered" the College through its years of infancy and is now continuing to do so in these, its childhood years. And it will, we are confident, ever prove a real mother as childhood develops into maturity and maturity into old age.

The marvelous assistance that the Guild is able to give to the College is due, in no small measure, to the inspiring leadership of its first President, Mrs. Frank D. Fogarty who, with her able Executive Board, planned, sacrificed, and accomplished so much culturally, educationally, and spiritually for the College.

From the zealous first president, Mrs. Fogarty, to the present incumbent, Mrs. James Lynch, all intervening Presidents, with their Executive Boards, have emulated the spirit of the first year and have thus brought the Guild to its present status of success and devotion to the College. The members of the Guild feel perfectly at home at the College, while both faculty and students look upon them as a vital factor in the success of the College because of the family relationship that exists. All believe that one of the greatest blessings for the organization is that Reverend Gerald Dillon was appointed by His Excellency, Russell J. McVinney, D.D., our Most Reverend Bishop, as Moderator for the Guild. Under Father's spiritual leadership the Guild has reached its present peak of glory and achievement.

To Reverend Father Dillon, to Presidents past and present, to all Executive Board members, Committee members, to each individual who has given of herself to the Guild, faculty and students of Salve Regina College sing a Te Deum in appreciation and dedicate this REGINA MARIS, the yearbook of the Class of 1956, as a token of deep gratitude to the Salve Regina College Guild.

All Good Reflected Here

POPE PIUS XII has stated that one of the greatest of woman's responsibilities is the transmitting of the fundamental heritage of civilization, the tradition of culture and religion, to the new generation. We live in the midst of this tradition, surrounded on all sides by symbols of the arts and sciences. The Eternal Wisdom dwells with us, and it is from this Central Point that all else reflects meaning and vitality. It rests with us "to reconcile science and wisdom in a vital and spiritual harmony." It is our privilege to transmit to the new generation "a faith fearless, firm and alive to Truth."

The ideal of Catholic priesthood and inspiring leadership is realized in Rhode Island's revered Bishop and Salve Regina's gracious friend, His Excellency Russell J. McVinney, D.D. Our Bishop's services to the Church and to the general good of our State cannot be measured in words. His endeavors are many, and not the least among them is his interest in our growth and development.

His presence at our most important academic functions demonstrates his kindly attitude and his fatherly solicitude for us as Catholic college students. In this the 1956 issue of REGINA MARIS we pay sincere tribute to our spiritual leader, realizing that through his constant efforts our lives as Catholic citizens of Rhode Island are strengthened and ennobled.

ADMINISTRATION

The operation of our College, the welfare of its students, the solicitude for our spiritual and physical welfare, the guidance of our careers — these and countless other services have been performed for us by the Administration throughout our four years at Salve Regina College.

Although we are unaware of the many problems encountered and resolved in our behalf, of the countless hours spent in planning and organizing, we are deeply grateful for the efforts and accomplishments of the Sisters who have daily worked and prayed for us.

Reverend John Shea, A.B., in his own serene way brings the great truths of religion home to our hearts. The study of God and of all things related to Him becomes vitalized through Father's sincere and Christ-like presentation.

A teacher's duties are more or less taken for granted. From our side of the desk the task of imparting knowledge seems comparatively easy. The hum-drum of the classroom is not so easily recognized when we find ourselves overwhelmed with assignments, analyses and reading lists. But there is another side to the picture.

They Reflect the Ways of God

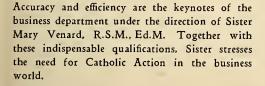

Reverend Irving A. Georges, O.P., M.A., S.T.Lr., S.T.B., has given himself most generously to our spiritual, academic and social welfare. Theology, Ethics, and even Logic become meaningful in Father's classes.

In the mature perspective which we have acquired, we see our faculty in another light. They have given much more than knowledge and book learning. Their essential contribution to our education lies in the inspiration for utilizing the hidden reserves of sacrifice, and for ordering our lives according to God's will. It is for this that we are grateful.

Sister Mary Evangelista, R.S.M., Ph.D., upholds the tradition of the classics and endeavors in this world of scientific progress to preserve the "glory that was Greece and the grandeur that was Rome."

Evaluating the past in order to understand the present and build the future is the particular work of history. Sister Mary Martina, R.S.M., Ph.D., clearly and emphatically inculcates this "historic" point of view in all her classes.

Sister Mary Constance, R.S.M., A.M., teaches chemistry, but her major function in the College is Dean of Students. Permissions, student problems, personal conferences—all these have a claim on Sister's time and wise counsel.

Sister Mary Martha, R.S.M., Ed.M., is most often found in the Home Economics laboratory at Mercy Hall, where she is busy directing her students in the art of homemaking. Sister endeavors to teach her girls the practical ways to bring Christian living into home life.

Sister Mary Kathleen, R.S.M., Ed.M., guides her students in preparing, cooking, and arranging the dishes which every Home Economics student delights in concocting. Food values are not neglected. Here is one place where the girls can make their cake and eat it, too.

Study, enjoyment, and permanent value—these are the watchwords in the English classes conducted by Sister Mary Jean, R.S.M., A.M. The tradition of the past linked with the endeavors of the present provides a background for critical evaluation.

The signs are in the studio—in water colors, in oils, in charcoal sketches, in china painting. These facets of art are part of the day's work for Sister Mary Mercedes, R.S.M., A.M., either at regular periods or at extension classes.

Sister Marie Pierre, R.S.M., Ph.D., in addition to her regular classes in French language and culture, has inaugurated Saturday classes for children ranging from primary grade level through junior high. This effort marks a new trend in American Education.

Sister Mary John Francis, R.S.M., A.B., instructor in the Romance language department, stimulates interest in the Spanish language and also in the great Spanish authors from medieval times to the twentieth century.

Sister Mary Laurene, R.S.M., A.M., finds history in all its phases—ancient, medieval, or modern—a fascinating study of ideologies and their consequences. As Moderator of the International Relations Club, Sister has focused our attention on current world problems.

The aim of all education is wisdom and goodness. Sister Mary Siena, R.S.M., A.M., in her exposition of educational theories and in her evaluation of the philosophic concepts of education, trains her students to understand the importance of the teaching profession.

The intricacies of mathematics involve no difficulties for Sister Mary Rose Agnes, R.S.M., A.M. Mathematics majors have found this investigation of spatial, serial, and numerical relations stimulating and challenging.

Combining the factors of book knowledge and experimentation, Sister Mary Philemon, R.S.M., A.B., endeavors to train her students to realize how chemistry helps one to understand the world in which we live.

Whether it be a discussion of parallel plots, characters, or climax in a Shakespearean play or an analysis of Poe's PHILOSOPHY OF COMPOSITION, Sister Mary Donald, R.S.M., A.M., stimulates our minds toward intellectual honesty and literary appreciation.

Sister Mary Othilda, R.S.M., A.M., trains her students in the understanding of the problems of labor, banking and investments, so that they will understand world conditions and know how to cope with those economic problems within their own communities.

Sister Mary Rosina, R.S.M., M.Mus., Moderator of the Queen's Choristers, arranges concerts with various colleges and is responsible for the annual Christmas Cantata. Sister also directs the freshmen in liturgical music.

Sister Mary Clarice, R.S.M., A.B., in addition to her office as secretary to the Dean of Studies, teaches mathematics, both in the regular class periods and in the extension school.

If you have a question about anatomy or biology, if you wish to know the structure, function and growth of an organism — Sister Mary Donalda, R.S.M., R.N.,B.S. in Nursing Ed., will have the answer.

Sister Mary Augustine, R.S.M., R.N., M.S., in Nursing Ed., has her clinical office at Saint Joseph's Hospital, where she supervises the curriculum and welfare of Salve Regina student nurses.

Miss Florinda Amado, B.S. Phys. Ed., promotes interest in recreational sports among the students. Volleyball, basketball, softball, tennis and bowling—each receives its share of attention. The Athletic Association looks forward to its annual Field Day under Miss Amado's capable guidance.

Miss Geraldine Barry, R.N., B.S. in Nursing, a Salve Regina graduate nurse, has taken over her duties as Assistant Medical and Surgical Instructor at Saint Joseph's Hospital, where she works drectly under the supervision of Sister Mary Augustine, R.S.M.

Sister Mary Christopher, R.S.M., A.M., is majoring in Sociology this year at Notre Dame University. Sociology, the science of service, has long been in Sister's experience as a social worker and teacher.

Attention, expression, enunciation—these are the disciplines Mrs. Robert Heywood, B.S., Mus., insists on in her bi-weekly practice with the Glee Club. Medieval selections, Negro spirituals, and modern melodies receive vivid vocal interpretation under Mrs. Heywood's expert direction.

Mirrored Momentarily

THE "TEN OF" bell rings, books and papers are gathered up, the chatter of voices is heard, and the exit from classes begins. Soon the girls appear mirrored momentarily on the stairease—some are on their way to the lounge, the eoke machine, or the iee cream bar, while others have to dash over to Merey Hall for a lab class. "Maybe the mail's arrived" means a non-stop flight to letter boxes. The ten-minute break is a time to enjoy the exchange of news, have a quick game of ping pong, or just relax.

FRESHMEN

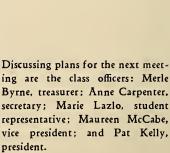

A freshman is everyone's friend ... capable of dreaming the wildest dreams and yet somehow always fulfilling them ... is gaiety and loneliness aptly combined to give depth and sensitivity. She is an unpredictable bundle of joy, always willing to aid even the smallest cause . . . sitting on pins and needles in restless expectation of her first Court Cotillion. Her room is decked with pennants, quaint sayings, pictures, and most of all stuffed animals, which are part and parcel of her being.

A freshman is a bursting package of energy on a basketball court — and on a date the epitome of femininity . . . loves parties which last until the wee hours of the morning . . . she is an ardent jazz enthusiast and yet, surprisingly, quite highbrow at times.

A freshman is sugar and spice and everything nice . . . extremely grateful to her junior sister for making her first year so wonderful. Most of all a freshman is kindness and loveliness . . . accepting and believing without question things which sometimes seem out of her grasp . . . enveloping everyone she meets in her warm smile and sincere friendliness.

Tuesdays and Thursdays at eleven the freshmen gather in Room A for Father Shea's course in Theology. Everyone is intent upon learning religious theories, the many and varied causes which affect everything that exists, and the principles behind self-evident truths. No week would be complete without this class.

Mail call always brings many girls together. While Anne Motte reads her letter, Patty Woods, Aggie Givern, Jane Integlia, and Joyce Santucci examine Jan Chartier's weekly package of goodies.

Daily in the cafeteria everyone congregates to have lunch and to exchange interesting bits of information. Seated here are Gail Douglas, Ann Bryan, Eve Davoren, Dee Petrarca, Nancy McGeough, Shiela Murphy, and Dottie James.

Preparing to leave for two years' training at Saint Joseph's Hospital are Kathleen Sullivan, Sandra Delehanti, Diane Silveria, Helgi Danjczek and Gertrude Amaral. After this training is completed they will be reunited with their classmates.

SOPHOMORES

"Everyone seems to be receiving mail today!" exclaim our class officers, Pat Crecca, Mickey Cali, Loretta Verde, Eileen Farrelly, Carol Cannon and Barbara O'Gara. This is a very happy occasion for everyone around lunch time.

A Sophomore . . . bottom half of the middle . . . full of counsel which she passes on to freshmen . . . determined to "study harder this year" . . . begins to get acquainted with majors and minors . . . thinks that Homer lived too long . . . lays ghost of freshman year with sale of World History . . . knowledge of music ranges from nodding acquaintance with Chopin's Polynaise to familiarity with commercials . . . has unusual faculty of putting Audrey Hepburn, Aristotle, and T. S. Eliot in the same sentence and making the relationship sound logical . . . confident that if she leaves Mercy Hall at 8:59 she can make a 9:00 class in the Study Hall . . . calls home less-and less . . . abandons Dairy Lounge for the Mayflower . . . finally masters art of stretching week's allowance to three days . . . avid reader of Time, Life, and comic-strip Peanuts ... untiring advocate of good time and coffee milk ... trench coat, small kerchief, sneakers, kneesoxstandard attire ... a nice person to know ... likes jumpers, Fridays, and Hemingway . . . dislikes bells, onions, and Arthur Godfrey . . . a sophomore -a legendary state of mind-a passing glory.

The members of the class of '58 seem to be in a gay mood as they look forward to two more years at Salve Regina. Future teachers, nurses, sociologists, biologists, chemists, home "ec" ers and mathematicians comprise the class. May all their dreams, hopes, and ambitions be realized.

Our day-hops seem rather cheery as classes end for the day. Commuting from surrounding areas are Barbara Phelan, Eileen Flaherty, Michele Cali, Anna Lozito, Mary Daley, Jean Maguire, Carole Flynn, and Patricia Murphy.

A junior . . . has lost a "big sister" but has found someone just as nice — a "freshman sister" . . . prints her abc's diligently and hopes that her magazine cut-outs are "actively meaningful" . . . is a student with something to remember, but no time to remember it . . . exults in feeling truly at home in Mercy and Moore Halls . . . dreams of reading lists and seminars . . . wears her trench coat with a special slouch . . . has acquired those glorious later late permissions . . . and wishes she could vote at the next election . . .

A junior still has the enthusiasm of a freshman, the wisdom of a sophomore, and is growing in that balanced attitude which gives her that new look and that jolly smile.

Thoroughly satisfied with the results of the meeting and with the academic world in general, class members stroll down the second floor corridor: the Misses Fee, Massouda, Schiavulli, McEnness, McAlice, and Hall.

Assembled for that very important class meeting in Room B at 11:50, the juniors offer a thoughtful study. President Maureen O'Rourke is discussing with the class preparations for the Ring Ceremony and Dance—highlight of the junior social calendar. Meetings of this kind are a part of student government activity, whereby students themselves manage class affairs.

Any resident junior spends a great part of her academic life in the environs of Mercy Hall. Here the Misses Texeira, Cox, Lynch, Meagher, Costa, McEnness, and MacDonald visit one of the quads.

A junior is a cocoon from which a senior will emerge and, at the same time, the height to which a sophomore aspires. She is breathing the exhilarating air of an upper classman at last and has graduated from required languages and prerequisites into her field of concentration. Having gotten her feet wet in her field, she wonders why it isn't more as she dreamed it would be — but is secretly relieved that it is too late to change her major again!

JUNIORS

Our Activities Reflect Varied Talent

Do You Knit, read, play ping-pong or are you a TV fan? You can find ample outlet for your aptitudes in the lounge. This new addition is the mecca for all students—resident or dayhop. An atmosphere of comradeship pervades the place. Here you can relax after class or take refuge from the grind of daily assignments. This is also the public forum, where each speaks her mind, and where everything from fashions to freshmen is a topic of interest. Come to the lounge, then, for recreation, rest, or refreshment. Its doors are open, its atmosphere friendly, its hobbies varied.

Honors Convocation in October brings coveted scholastic recognition to Barbara Faris as she receives her award from Right Reverend Russell J. McVinney, D.D., who presided at the ceremonies in the Great Hall.

Convocation Day

Convocation Day brings the capping of the sophomore nursing students. Sandra Delehanty places her candle at Our Lady's altar following the act of consecration.

Reverend Arthur Sullivan of Our Lady of Providence Seminary brings his message to the student body on the real meaning of sanctity. The integration of heart, intellect and will in God as one meets her student obligations is the key to saintliness.

At the Ball we pause to enjoy refreshments.

In February 1955, as juniors, we stood under the replica of the Star Sapphire preparatory to receiving our rings from Mother M. Hilda, R.S.M., President of the College. As we descended the great staircase for this solemn moment, undergraduates formed an honor guard. This was one of our proudest moments, as we could now display tangible proof of our loyalty to our school.

Days Beyond Recall

Honors Convocation Day was our first experience in the academic ceremonies at Salve Regina College. After the ceremony a few of the girls meet to take a picture.

The freshman class of 1956, dressed in school jackets and blue veils, are seen leaving the grounds at Moore Hall after the celebration of outdoor benediction in honor of the Feast of Christ the King.

Another memory especially dear to our hearts is the ceremony of investiture. That day, as freshmen, we received our caps and gowns. The Newport day-hops proudly display a symbol of college life.

It really is cold, even though Virginia Boisvert and Pauline Shugrue have braved the elements minus their coats. Reverend John Cominsky, S.J. who conducted the retreat in January 1955 chats a few moments with us.

Reverend Gerald F. Dillon officiates at benediction at the shrine of the Sacred Heart at Moore Hall. The student body assembles to honor Christ the King.

The Sodality fulfills the chief purpose of its existence-personal sanctification-in the time devoted twice in each week to what is termed the Sodality Conference. This year's conference period was devoted to the life of Our Lord under the title "Know Him More Intimately." The conferences followed the liturgical cycle as far as possible. Student participation added much to the general interest of those who attended the sessions. The work of the apostolate, while not to be measured by the spectacular, has functioned in the support of the Mission Bazaar and in the Christmas party for the poor. Assemblies stressing Sodality aims were also presented to the student body.

Our Lady of Lourdes grotto at Moore Hall was the setting for the October Living Rosary. Phyllis McCaughey led the Mysteries. Away from the turmoil and fever of life, the grotto is a haven of peace and devotion.

The Sodality Conference Hour devoted to a study of the liturgy is held one sunny May morning on the terrace overlooking the ocean. God's sunshine and God's truth find eager acceptance here.

Mercy Day on September twenty-fourth brings the annual pilgrimage to Our Lady's altar. Alice Fee arranges roses presented by Maureen O'Rourke, Loretta Verde, and Patricia Kelly in the name of the student body.

One May evening Joan Kane crowned Our Lady in the presence of the two newly-received members of Our Lady's Sodality; Miss Helga Danjczek and Miss Margaret Gomez.

The Sodality Board for the year 1954-55; Claire Randall, Phyllis McCaughey, Joan Kane, Joan Howell and Eleanor Hackett.

To express the true function of the Student Council, a synonymous term seems most appropriate; it is the executive committee of the Student Government Organization of Salve Regina College. Essentially, such an organization possesses the right to establish and maintain order on and off campus and to enforce its ordinances.

Composed of a senior president and vice president, a junor secretary and treasurer, four class presidents, a representative from each group, the Sodality Prefect, and an N.F.C.C.S. delegate, the group meets weekly to review and to effect student legislation. Such gatherings are open to any student; however, results and decisions are formally presented to the entire student body at monthly assemblies. Here, questions or suggestions may also be raised.

Self discipline, plus a true regard for the rights of others, is the outcome of such a system of government. Leaders will evolve inevitably, but, more importantly, responsible citizens will emerge. Loretta Verde, sophomore class president, Maureen O'Rourke, junior class president, Eleanor Hackett, senior representative, Carol Corcoran, treasurer, and Mary Jane Murphy, junior class representative, discuss notices to be posted on the bulletin board.

Student Council

Ochre Court conclave — smìles must certainly denote, not demerits, but a review of the social calendar by council members, Marie Lazlo, Patricia Crecca, Phyllis McCaughey, Carol Cannon, and Patricia Kelly.

Moira McEnness, vice president, and Pauline Shugrue, senior class president, indicate anticipatory pleasure as they post glossies of future activities on new multiplex display unit, students' gift to the college.

Council confers—capably and comfortably in Room B. Joan Langhorn, president, presides, while attention to the business at hand is given by Carol Corcoran, Patricia Kelly, Mary Jane Murphy, Moira McEnness, Maureen O'Rourke, Eleanor Hackett, Patricia Crecca, Mario Lazlo, Loretta Verde, Phyllis McCaughey, and Pauline Shugrue.

Le Cercle Français

Vive la France! Have you a taste for the French language and culture? Salve Regina's Cercle Francais is a must. Conducted in affiliation with the Alliance Francaise Nationale, it offers all students of French an opportunity to increase their knowledge of France, while enabling them to speak the language more fluently. Under the excellent guidance of Mrs. Jose Ramos, members take part in the classical French dramas and, at more informal gatherings, present musical programs and French films. Meetings of Le Cercle Francais are conducted entirely in French and feature various activities, including the annual awarding of prizes to those students who have excelled in the study of French.

A moment of glory! Sheila McEnness shares her joy as Miss Fleur de Lis with her sister Moira. The Rochambeau Celebration held in Newport in July, 1955 was a social and historical event.

Cookies and cakes are here for the eating. Mary Jane Murphy is ready for the initial cake cutting.

Reverend Gerald F. Dillon acts as host to the chaplain and these sailors from the Jean Bart. They enjoyed visiting our French Chateau.

Jean Soucy, treasurer, Joyce Pimental, secretary, Susan Hatfield, president, and Fausta Quental, vice president, admire Spanish figurines at Pinata Party.

Susan Hatfield places diamond ring, gift of the club, to the statue of the Infant of Prague.

The gaiety and splendor of the Spanish people are captured in the numerous activities of El Circulo Salamanca under the direction of the able and energetic Sister M. John Francis, R.S.M. This year the special feature of the annual Pinata party was the presentation by the Club of a diamond ring for the statue of the Infant of Prague. Other events included Mexican games and the annual Pan American tea. Through the Club it is hoped that the students of Spanish will have achieved a more complete education, not only scholastically, but culturally as well.

El Circulo Salamanca

These art students had the privilege of preparing the back-drops for the outdoor Christmas exhibits displayed at Touro Park.

Children like to express themselves in crayon as well as in words. This group is no exception.

Art Club

This Christmas exhibit adds to the general joyous atmosphere and demonstartes the work accomplished by the students.

What would you like — water colors, oil paintings, charcoal sketches? Whatever suits your talents will find development in the studio under the direction of Sister M. Mercedes. Art education also has a place in the club, and some of the students gain valuable experience teaching art in the parochial schools.

Providence College and Salve Regina songbirds blend harmoniously at the November concert held at Saint Mary's Academy.

The Queen's Choristers

The Queen's Choristers have concluded a very successful season. Two joint concerts, one with Providence College and the other with Manhattan College, were well received. The Christmas Cantata added much to the joy of the season. Congratulations, Sister M. Rosina, Mrs. Robert Heywood and members of the club.

The Queen's Choristers give their best as Mrs. Robert Heywood leads them in her own inimitable manner. Be it light or serious, in major or minor key, there is response plus when the baton signals for attention.

Some members of the Glee Club get together informally for a song.

This time Manhattan and Salve Regina perform. This concert on the April agenda completed the public appearances for the year.

Barbara Faris, president of Sigma Rho, meets with other members to discuss the Science Convention in Philadelphia.

Sigma Rho

Salve Regina's addition to extra-curricular activity this year is in the form of a science club, Sigma Rho. Members represent science enthusiasts from mathematics, chemistry, biology, and physics courses. Participation in conferences and conventions, as well as field trips and excursions, is emphasized. All opportunities to further scientific knowledge and interest by first-hand observation are readily investigated.

Sigma Rho has proved to be the unifying force of the sciences at the College. Members have come to realize the close relation that scientific fields have to each other, and that it is not possible to draw a sharp line of separation. Too much emphasis cannot be placed on the position science holds in the modern world.

Sigma Rho members try to find the answer to one of their problems in the library.

Club Officers: Myrna Clancey, president; Lillian Chien, vice president; Patricia Smith, Secretary; Marilyn Soucy, treasurer.

Vivian Massouda, Lorraine Boisvert, Lillian Chien, Patricia Smith, and Myrna Clancey have tea in the Chaplain's Dining Room.

Home Economics Club

A strong co-curricular group, the Salve Regina Home Economics Club, carries on a program throughout the year. Teas, fashion shows, and field trips provide opportunities for members to display their accomplishments. A young woman taking this course receives many rewards. Perhaps the greatest is the sense of creativeness she experiences as her projects are completed.

Under the direction of Sister M. Martha and Sister M. Kathleen the Home Economics Department is one of the most active and rewarding organizations of the College. Specialization in clothing and foods are the two main divisions in the course. Occupations in the field of dietetics, institutional management, teaching and training for home making are the chief aims of the department.

Joan Langhorn, N.F.C.C.S. senior delegate, explains a recent regional development to Carol Cannon, sophomore alternate. Waiting to relate international news, junior delegate Maureen O'Rourke scrutinizes latest publicity for the travel program.

Bill Willick, chairman of the regional Student Government Commission, challenges his audience with student problems.

N.F.C.C.S.—symbol of an all-important phase of college life—the interchange of ideas among students. This federation unites the action of Catholic college students throughout the entire nation. Functioning most practically on a regional basis, commission workshops are conducted by nearly all twenty-six member colleges. Delegates who attended fall and winter councils at Saint Michael's and Regis were joined by many interested students at the Spring Congress at Holy Cross College.

Carol Corcoran, Bill Willick, Dick Heslin, R.I.C.E., and Janite Labonte, Brown, prepare Student Government Workshop panel.

Missions

Patricia O'Connell, the 1956 Mission Queen, is being crowned by Joan Howell. Her attendants are Cynthia Bernardoni, Betty Hoffman. Helen Rigney, Joan Langhorn, Dorothy Kehew, and Irene Reese.

Pat Walsh and Rita Boucher wait while mothers and friends choose their numbers at the jewelry table.

The Mission Bazaar, an annual affair held in October and conducted by the sophomores, arouses much enthusiasm and good will on campus. Almost anything can be found for sale or on chances, from live-stock to popcorn. Pitching pennies for cigarettes is a game popular with many, and of course there is the indispensable food booth. Long hours of preparation yield success, and the presentation of the check by the Mission Queen crowns the whole endeavor.

Among those trying their luck at pitching pennies for cigarettes are Sheila Dugan and Lillian Igo. Helen Rigney and Judy Albanese are busy gathering the numerous pennies.

In the 1955-56 season of the Dramatic Club "the play was the thing!" A hilarious one-act comedy, "Just Imagine," was presented in the fall. In March "The Upper Room," a three-act play, was well done. During senior week the annual Parents' Day play was offered. Much of the club work placed emphasis on choral speaking and the dramatic monologue. Members of the group learned the technical aspects of make-up and scenery while they were becoming skillful Thespians. A sincere vote of thanks to Sister M. Siena, our moderator and director, whose efforts are the basis of all our success.

"Beware of Termites" — and right here of leaking roofs?

The Regina Players

"Just Imagine" opens with a discussion of food — correct diet and such. Actresses Jean Maguire, Anne Motte, Michele Cali, and Clara Barros think this subject is certainly apropos for a collegiate audience.

It's all a hoax. Here the secret is revealed — there are no termites, no leaking roofs. Wilma Meagher discards her shawl to the delight of Clara Barros, Carol Cannon, Barbara O'Gara and especially Rydia Almy.

International Relations Club

Editor Carol Cannon and business manager Barbara O'Gara look over galley proofs.

Carol Fitzgerald, '59, gets words of wisdom and encouragement from veteran reporters Connie Casey, '56, and Maureen Lynch, '57.

Ebb Tide

Counting words, measuring headlines, drafting lay-outs, catching busy reporters — from such activities does the Ebb Tide evolve. Issued bi-monthly under the supervision of Sister M. Donald, R.S.M., faculty adviser, the paper publicizes important happenings on campus. Students, faculty, clubs, inter-collegiate organizations, all claim attention through the medium of the college newspaper.

Tedious hours, anxious hours, many hours—reporters compose, editors proofread, then—writers revise. Merchants must be contacted, advertisements must be obtained—the business manager gets to know Newport.

Business accomplished, counts rechecked, stories revised — the Ebb Tide is not-so-silently "put to bed." With the paper's arising, S.R.C. sees how much she lives.

Reporters from diverse fields on campus congregate at information desk to compare assignments. "Missouri" probably made page one from that smile!

Busy fingers of typists speed Ebb Tide to the press.

Regina Maris

Through the swift pens of its journalists, the flying fingers of its typists, and the click of cameras, the 1956 REGINA MARIS is presented to its readers. Some moments were leaden, others silver, and still others golden. Through all the vicissitudes which ranged from the first glance at the "dummy" to the finished product, the staff, with the guidance and invaluable assistance of Sister M. Jean and Sister M. Donald, moved a unified whole in purpose, in effort and in achievement.

Geraldine Hogan, Dorothy Kehew, and Constance Casey discuss when and where photographs are to be taken, notices to be posted, and how pictures are to be arranged in the book.

With their practice teaching completed, these student teachers meet to talk over their many and varied experiences.

Teachers

Their probationary period completed, student nurses of the class of '56 were "capped" in February 1954. Present at the reception which followed were: Rev. Gerald Dillon, Rita Boucher, Betty Hoffman, Sister Marilyn, Sister M. Christopher, Sister M. Geralyn, Joan Inman, Patricia Walsh, Marguerite Rynn.

Officers of the Salve Regina College Student Nursing Association: Joan Inman, secretary; Betty Hoffman, president; Rita Boucher, treasurer; Peggy West, vice president.

Nurses

Joan Langhorn, class president in sophomore year, congratulates student nurses as they open gifts received on the occasion of their capping.

Joan Inman, Patricia Walsh, Marguerite Rynn, and Peggy West display mixed emotions after the ceremony.

Ghost Parade

These freshman seem rather perturbed as their conductor, Janice Miles, walks away from them. Were they off key? Their splendid voices added much to the enjoyment of the Hallowe'en party.

Evie Davoren seems to be haunting someone as she poses in a scene from Dangerous Dan McGrew.

Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, Peter Rabbit and a squad of De LaSalle football players made up the costumes of the audience at the annual Hallowe'en party.

The Children's Hour

So many presents! Just which one goes to which child — that's the problem. Geraldine Hogan, Dossie Kehew, Marilyn Soucy, Phyllis McCaughey, and Pat McDonald, sort the presents as Marie Lazlo and Dottie James look on.

"Gee whiz, Santa, are they really mine?" Santa surveys the scene as a youngster discovers that he has a pair of roller skates.

Even before Thanksgiving there are mysterious conferences going on and names being signed for some fortunate child whose name, age, and size are the object of much scrutiny. What is it all about? The Christmas party, of course. To a freshman goes the glory of being Santa. Anne Carpenter filled the bill to a "t" this past Christmas. There are presents galore and happiness beyond measure.

The Children's Hour. Happy faces and babbling excitement evidence the true Spirit of Christmas. A heart-warming scene at Mercy Hall.

Not a very dignified outfit for a classroom, but this is what we had to wear on Initiation Day: stocking caps, blouses inside out and backwards, skirts upside down, high heels with socks, low heels with stockings, gloves, and name cards!

Posing on campus in initiation garb are Irene Reese, Peggy West, Pat O'Connell, Claire Phelan, Janet Smith, and Connie Casey.

Initiation Day

Playing volleyball in the gym are members of the Athletic Association. All eyes seems to be on the ball, while everyone is waiting for action.

Athletic Association

Showing a keen display of skill at badminton are Marge Gomez and Carolyn Swetnam. Even in the final moments both girls still appear to be showing winning form.

Rydia Almy shows her highjumping abilty at Feild Day exercises while Pat Smith holds the rope tight.

Taking a breather from the Field Day exercises, members of the senior and sophomore classes prepare to make wheel barrows.

Our Court Cotillion in May 1953 brings back many pleasant memories. Helen Rigney and Judy Albanese do the honors at intermission.

Seated with their escorts Patricia O'Connell and Moira McEnness wait for the flash bulb to pop, as Jane Hale looks on.

The Light Fantastic

The grand march comes to a halt in the Great Hall long enough for the cameraman to snap this picture.

The Christmas Ball brings many to the Pawtucket Country Club.

Christmas Dance

Eleanor Hackett and her escort Dick Kehew lead the class of 1956 through a giant replica of the Star Sapphire.

Our junior year brings another memory to hold in our hearts, the Sapphire Ball.

Time out for refreshments. Joan Langhorn serves punch to Joan Carron and Judith Albanese.

Barbara Block, Therese Sullivan, and Roberta Dutra wait for tea from Gertrude McGrath. The joint Guild-Alumnae High Tea was a memorable occasion.

Alumnae

Mary Mondi, Marion Estes, Sally Ann McLeod, and Margaret Considine confer with Margaret West outside Mercy Hall.

Maureen Oates, Alumnae president, and Martba O'Rourke greet Madeleine Saccoccio, former student body president, who has just been admitted into the ranks of the Alumnae Association.

The Alumnae, the ever-growing organization which is part of ourselves, is under the guidance of Sister M. Martina, R.S.M., and is this year directed by Mrs. Mary Ann Bolton McGwin, '52, president; Miss Ann Collins, '53, vice president; Mrs. Catherine Hawkins, Graziano, '53, treasurer; Miss Loretta Ross, '52, corresponding secretary; and Miss Hazel Sullivan, '54, recording secretary.

The agenda included Homecoming Day, October sixteenth, November dance, and the annual Bridge in February to finance the Alumnac Scholarship, awarded currently to Miss Marilyn Sullivan of Newport. The members' vocations vary from MRS. to R.S.M.—teachers, biologists, sociologists, businesswomen, nurses—united in their aim to bring the message of Salve Regina to the world.

Homecoming Day in October was a decided success in spite of torrential rain and almost impassable roads. Reverend John Shea presided at the luncheon held in the cafeteria. With him at the main table were the officers of the Alumnae Association: Miss Maureen Oates; Miss Anne Collins; Miss Hazel Sullivan; Mrs. John McGwin; Miss Loretta Ross; and Mrs. Louis Graziano.

We Reflect the Happiness of Achievement

PREPARING FOR RICH, full lives as Christian women, the seniors have spent four years at the College, striving to acquire a formal education together with a sense of responsibility, of charity, and of spiritual vitality. With Saint Paul we say to them: "To this end we pray always for you that our God may make you worthy of His calling and may fulfill with power every good purpose and work of faith, that the name of our Lord Jesus Christ may be glorified in you and you in Him according to the grace of our God and the Lord Jesus Christ."

Something New to Reflect Upon

THIS YEAR our book has a surprise ending. "Vinland," the estate of Mrs. Florence Twombly Burden, was formally given to Salve Regina College at Christmas. This fourteen-acre estate adjoins Ochre Court. The main building houses our library on the first floor; the second is used for classrooms and the third floor for dorm rooms. We share the joy of the whole school in the acquisition of this estate, even though we shall not have the opportunity of knowing its every nook and cranny as we do Ochre Court, Mercy and Moore Halls.
